NO MORE CIRCUSES?

From 20th April 1998, the owner of one of the last remaining animal circuses, Mary Chipperfield, and two of her staff have faced private prosecution on 49 counts of animal cruelty. This follows an 18 month undercover operation by the Animal Defenders, who filmed her physically abusing a camel and a chimp, and one of Chipperfield's staff, murderer Stephen Gills, battering an elephant with an iron bar so violently it bent. They could be fined £2,000 for each count and banned from keeping animals.

Animals Defenders, 261 Goldhawk Road, London W12 9PE.

Thames Valley cops staked their credibility on keeping cat breeder Chris Brown in business, they were prepared to spend  $\pounds^{1}/_{2}m+$  and turn Hillgrove into a fortress, to use any amount of force to keep us out court, but after a year of concerted pressure, it looks like it's going the same

The Oxfordshire public-even the local press!--know TVP are wasting their money, so they're now trying to back down by wasting even more money, offering to buy the farm off Brown to use as a training centre. It seems staff quitting as a result of home visits and other local pressure is the clincher - Brown can't run Hillgrove all on his own. Fuck 'im, we say - one last push and he'll fold!

THE MYSTERY OF FLIGHT 1862

Six years ago, in 1992, an Israeli cargo plane took off from Schipol airport near Amsterdam, and crashed on a city suburb. 900 flats were damaged in the explosion and fire, 43 people died. Now, residents of the same estate are suffering from Gulf War Syndrome-type symptoms: tiredness, unexplained skin rashes, cancers, miscarried pregancies. Doctors from the estate linked the symptoms with the crash, and tried to fgind out what was on board the plane. They approached the Dutch authorities, and El Al, the Israeli airline. These both provided cargo manifests, but each was different. At the time of the crash, mysterious teams dressed in strange fireproof suits were seen moving around the site, removing objects. It is thought Flight 1862 had secret missile partsd on board, but now it looks as though

To such communities, individuals and things are not necessarily better or worse than each other, they were simply dissimilar. Each was prized for itself, indeed, for its unique traits. The conception of individual autonomy had not yet acquired the fictive From this feeling of unity between the horticultural ceremonies have the role of consisting of the conclusions that our "sovereignty" it has achieved today. The world was perceived as a individual and the community emerges a summoning forth the cycles of the cosmic current bouquet of mystics profess to composite of many different parts, each indispensable to its unity and feeling of unity between the community order, of actualising the solstices and the harmony. Individuality, to the extent that it did not conflict with the and its environment. Psychologically, different stages in the growth of maize community interest on which the survival of all depended, was seen more disappears. Although this sense of this order and these states are known to be death, the inexplicably unique condition of in terms of interdependence than independence. Variety was prized dependence may generate abject fear or an predetermined, human ceremonial within the larger tapestry of the community - as a priceless ingredient of equally abject reverence, there is a point of involvement is an integral part of that community unity.

They are implicit in the very outlook itself. Moreover, because they are not placed in juxtaposition to the concepts 'inequality' and 'unfreedom', these notions lack definability. As Dorothy Lee observed in her deeply incisive sensitive essays on this outlook:

Equality exists in the very nature of things, as a byproduct of the democratic structure of the culture itself, not as a princip's to be applied. In such societies, there is no attempt to achieve the goal of equality, and in fact there is no concept of equality. Often, there is no linguistic mechanism whatever for comparison. What we find is absolute respect for man, for all individuals irrespective of age and sex.

The absence of coercive and domineering values in organic cultures is perhaps best illustrated by the syntax of the Wintu Indians, a people that Lee studied very closely. She notes that terms commonly expressive of coercion in modern languages are arranged, in Wintu syntax, to denote cooperative behaviour instead. A Wintu mother, for example, does not "take" a baby into the shade; she goes with it. A chief does not "rule" his people; he stands with them. Lee observes

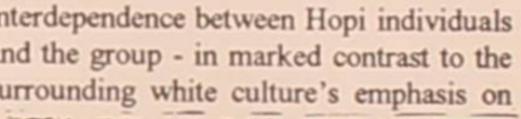

They never say, and in fact they cannot say, as we do, 'I have sister', or a 'son', or 'husband'. To live with is the usual way in which they express what we call possession, and they use this term for everything that they respect, so that a man will be said to live with his bow and arrows.

The phrase "to live with" implies not only ing affections to other persons, and of a deep sense of mutual respect for person finding satisfactions within oneself and a high regard for individual voluntarism; it also implies a profound than an examination of American Indian The traditional society of the Hopi was geared entirely towards group solidarity. And her, too, it is every aspect of a person which counts. The entire being of the Hopi individual affects the balance of nature; and as each individual develops his inner potential, so he enhances his participation, so does the entire universe become Contemporary ecological rhetoric tends to blur the wealth of implications that follow from the integration if the individual, community, and environment into a "universal order". Since Lee penned these lines, almost every one of her words have social functions, such as initiation rites, we become the cheap coin of the 'human potential' movement. Preliterate culture, functions. Among the Hopi, major in fact, often begin with a cosmology attain. To organic societies, the puzzling cosmological issue is not life, which exists non-living and hence non-being. 'Soul', in some sense, permeates the entirety of existence; the 'dead' matter that science has given us since the Renaissance, as Hans Jonas has so sensitively pointed out concept, so familiar to us, is anything but obvious". What is most natural to organic societies is an abundantly fecund, allencompassing 'livingness' that is integral to its knowingness, a world of life that

The direct involvement of humanity with nature is thus not an abstraction, and Dorothy Lees's account of the Hopi ceremonials is not a description of "primitive man's Science", as Victorian anthropologists believed. Nature begins as life. From the very outset if human consciousness, it enters directly into consociation with humanity-not merely harmonisation or even balance. Nature as life eats at every repast, succours every new birth, grows with every child, aids every hand that throws a spear or plucks a plant, warms itself at the hearth in the dancing shadows, and sits amidst the councils of the community just as the rustle of the leaves and grasses is part of the air itself - not merely a sound borne on the wind. Ecological ceremonials validate the 'citizenship' nature acquires as part of the human environment. 'The People' (to use the name that many preliterate communities give to themselves) do not disappear into nature or nature into 'the People'. But nature is not merely a warnings to it in the wind's voice, nourishes it with as largesse of plants and animals, and in its countless functions and cardinal directions and numbers and counsels is absorbed into the community's

> What the ecological ceremonial does, in complete the involvement of society with nature. Here, the ceremonial, despite its naively fictive content, speaks more truthfully to the richly articulated interface between society and nature than concepts that deal with the natural world as 'matrix', 'background' or worse, 'precondition' for the social world. Indeed, far from dealing with nature as an 'It' or a 'Thou' (to use Martin Buber's terms), the ceremonial validates nature as kin, a blooded, all-important estate that words like citizen can never attain. Nature is named even before it is deified; it is personified as part of the community before it is raised above it as 'supernature'. To the pygmies of the Ituri forest, it is "Ndura" and to the settled Bantu villagers the same word strictly. designates the forest that the pygmies regard as a veritable entity in itself, active and formative in all its functions.

Hakim Bey in defence of culture

There is a time for the theatre.-If a people's imagination grows weak there arises in it the inclination to have its legends presented to it on the stage: it can now endure these crude substitutes for imagination. But for those ages to which the epic rhapsodist belongs, the theatre and the actor disguised as a hero is a hindrance to imagination rather than a means of giving it wings: too close, too definite, too heavy, too little in it of dream and bird-flight.

It is clear that anarchist Chumbawamba and their new set-up of major label status and expensive organisations like the ACF and Class War gig costs. The relationship between punk and class struggle (particularly credit the potential listeners of punk anarchism) is in need of some critical assessment. The regular arguments records with the desire to listen to that occur when a 'right-on' band sign to a 'major' label (eg Blaggers and EMI) do not suffice as critical engagement, what is

- What are the different ideas emerging from music today, and how can we assess them ion the class struggle?

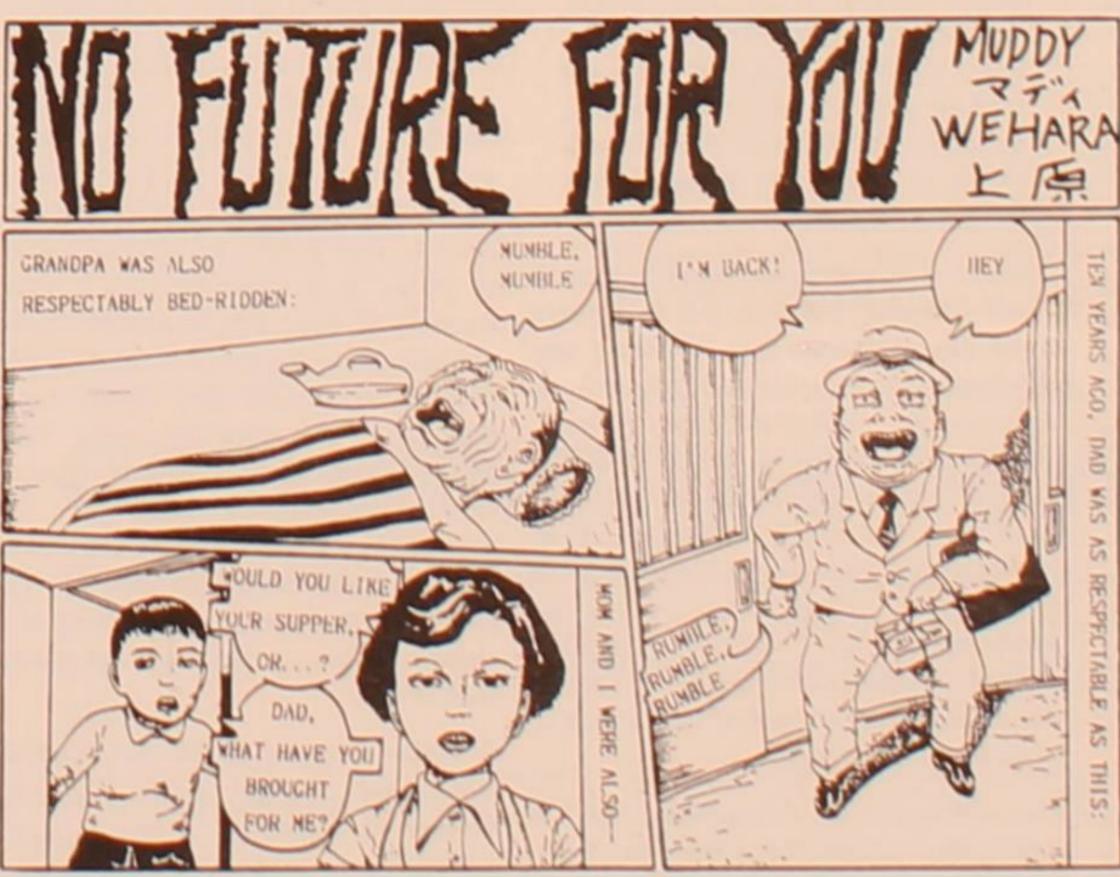

This writer also has a vested interest in the interplay with punk and the class struggle, as I was involved in the early punk scene (as a spectator) and was introduced to class struggle anarchism through an attitude that was developed through punk. The dangers of wallowing in nostalgia are apparent and there are various things I have considered before tackling this essay: that the music industry is now a much tighter unit allowing diversity under strict control;, that it is easy to look back with romantic feelings and fail to be critical of punk or oneself, and that t is equally easy to be cynical from an elevated position of having somehow 'moved on'.

How can content be dissolved into form? Well, punk, to me and many people, expressed anger, boredom, restlessness and a sickness of society and conformity the clever trick is tat the music is also characterised by its angry, restless and non-conformist 'form'. Lyrical content was either blasted out of existence by screaming rants, crashing drums, and thrashing guitars or twisted to poetic extremes as a protest against the stale lyrics of 1970's love ballads and disco trash tunes (eg. Buzzcocks and their cynical anti-love songs, or Joy Division and their gloomy soul dredging excursions). But punk was mainly angry, and anger characterised its form - this tradition continues to date, and for the record companies it is often the case of the angrier the better. The harsher the subject educating lyrical content, indicated by the cultural propaganda and so must be that forms the kernel of the lyrics (fascism,

There is no doubt that people are doing exciting things with music, and that the variety and diversity of music is something either promoted or manufactured by the record industry (even though the odd dog will appear like positive punk and new romantic in the 80s!).

The second consideration brought about by the mediating factor of the totality of and audience. This worker / RTS alliance wasn't based on ideology, it was purely practical. After the M41 street party a few months earlier, the Met wouldn't let the planned commemoration of the passing of the Criminal Justice Act happen in London. The dockers had seen RTS cause disruption on a scale their Leftist hangers-on couldn't - and figured they'd CONSCIOUSNESS involve local youth who's only previous interest in the dispute had been as scabs. Two days after the rally, dockers and DIYers stood side by side on the roof of MDHC's Rathouse and achieved what the old guard hadn't people' in such terms will undoubtedly be first imposed on original, unalienated for the whole previous year - an occupation of Seaforth dock.

Welcome though this was, it didn't really "trade unon consciousness" the patronising Lefties thought was all they were up to. What DIYers supplied was something new, appropriate to their desperate circumstances. What this piece is about is what was new, how it was appropriate, and why the Left couldn't come up with the goods.

SUPERCEDING ECONOMISM

JOURNOWATCH THE MEDIA BIAS FILE

In 1994, we announced the foundation of Journowatch. Here's just a few examples of propaganda from our media bias files...

ANARCHOPHOBIA

The Sunday Times' John Harlow's Summer of Hate piece (4th July 1994) is now seen as a pardigm of media bias. This hated towards radical politics was recently seen in the Evening Standard's article, Anarchy for Beginners, by Charles Skelton (17th March 1998), a tour of lies and sheer fabrication around the anarchist movement. Trying to make radicals look silly or inept is one alienating technique, and as the radical movement becomes more important we must expect more of this.

EMOTIVE LANGUAGE

One way to see this in operation is to take of ants or rats again. your newspaper article, and go through it with illuminated marker pen, highlighting emotional language. What proportion is coloured in, what proportion is fact?

PREJUDICE

example we find Jill Phipps the protestor or by the State. In the Tim Hepple World killed at Coventry airport in 1995, was "A In Action programme of April 1993, fanatic who had protest in her blood" Freedom is described as "a radical according to the Daily Mail's Tony bookshop". No mention of the Halpin (3rd February 1995). Almost ANARCHIST word there. This systemanything written about the Gandalf trial by atic censorship, the blue-pencilling out of the Stasi mouthpiece Graham Keeley in the @ word continues, and is just like the Portsmouth News displays this kind of those Stalin pictures of Russian thing, descriptions of GA's editors as revolutionaries, where the purged party "Terrorists" and so forth. This technique activists got airbrushed out of the picture. was also taken up in the Express's 15th During the 1990 Poll Tax revolt, Labour November 1997 piece, Anarchists Jailed councillors on protests werre cropped out For Bombing Plot by Anthony MItchell.

VISUALS

Alienating techniques on TV can be particularly subtle. TV movs on too quickly, you can re-read a newspaper article, the only way you can analyze a TV programme is to video it and watch it protests, but did not the cats in cages several times. One way menace can be suggested is through the use of sinister background music. The selection of camera angle and lighting can also be important. In 1996, a low camera with a special lens transformed an ordinary House of Commons committee room full of Euro-rebels into a claustrophobic crowd of bug-eyed aliens. When the propaganda techniques are turned againmst the people they normally serve, the effect is all the more noticeable.

ANTS AND TERMITES

In the TV documentary The Force (commentator David Rise, the Searchlight mouthpiece!), an RTS protest, November 1997 in Oxford, one sequence showed protestors rushing towards Cowley Road. This took place at about 1.30 in the afternoon, in broad daylight, but on TV, infra-red film from a cop helicopter was used to show this. Consequently the protest looked like some running infestation of ants or termites, not people at all; with the implication that this is a problem which needs to be stamped out, gassed or poisoned out of existence.

LONG TERM BIAS

Tricks like this are so common people hardly notice them, you have to see the video again and again to catch on. It is not one particularly biased report that is the problem, but the general tendency ovber years; negative propaganda, selection of facts, stereotypical images; the hostile attitudes continually drip drip drip.

One example of the long-term negative propaganda and routine hate was seen in the Daily Mail (5th August 1996) Paul Harris piece about the Crowborough travellers camp. "Population boom as the caravan republic runs mgs round the law" thus the traveller 'problem'-always a good target of hatred for the rural property-owning hang 'em 'n' flog 'em destroy public 'sympathy' for the police as Algerian pilots, but the Mirror front page brigade--is conveniently linked up to the protectors of the cat torturer.

single mothers 'problem', with connotations of those termites or a plague

COVER UP

What you call something can indicate bias. Terminology-how you describe something-colours readers' or viewers' perceptions. For example, the Freedom Headlines are particularly emotive, for Bookshop was attacked, perhaps by C18 of reproduced news-paper photographs.

STRATEGIC OMISSION

Strategic facts are always left out of the picture. The Farmer Brown cat farm TV documentary, for example, showed the despite everyone at that demo chanting at say doesn't always have to be false, but terrorist threat, non-vegan ALF egg acid casrds themselves. If people complain they them "film in the sheds" and the crew the emphasis can be wrong-headed. It bombs etc will be hyped up. It is don't want the Europe symbol, the claiming to have done so. Thus, a key doesn't always have to be sinister. Often sensationalistic, but it also helps 'justify' essential step of 'consent' to the cards piece of information was missing. Just the wish to sensationalise gets in the way. repression like the Gandalf case. what is going on in there? #### PILGERISM

One particularly offensive technique for everyone who thinks globally but acts locally is their tendency to distract attention away from repression in Britain, while criticizing human rights abuses abroad. One example of this type of thing is the Waterstones ad asserting the idea that Britain is tolerant, free and democratic because we can buy books by Salman Rushdie or Solzhenitsyn. At the same time as this ad was shown, three peple were in prison for publishing an anarchist magazine. This sort of example is all about te management of appearance.

The diversion ploy switches attention away from one unacceptable thing to another. In a 17th August 1996 report about identity cards, attention concentrated on the possibility the cards would be overprinted with a Euro-symbol, and thus the issue becomes Europe, not the themselves will have vbeen forfeited. Similar ploys were used during the period when CCTV went up n all the high streets, where the issue was crime or IRA bomb attacks and not personal privacy. And so it goes on.

ARTICLES LET'S GET THIS STRAIGHT! An edited Open Letter to the Scottish Anarchist Federation

Dear Scottish Anarchist Federation,

You told London Gandalf Support Campaign of our Scottish speaking tour's cancellation two days ago - I only heard today. I hear the reason was that we published Steve Booth's Irrationalists article in GA51.

This decision and the way it was made was utterly disgraceful. You made no effort to understand why it was printed or to debate its contents, to clarify matters with us or to differentiate between the issues raised by Steve, by GA and by the Gandalf campaign. You've fallen prey to rumour and manipulation and have shown an intolerance, credulity and GANDALF CAMPAIGN conformism sadly typifying much of the anarchist movement today.

FACTFILE: DEVELOPERS BONANZA

- 4.4m new houses to be built by 2016
- Labour's gift of £264-400m to construction
- 875,840 empty houses and rising
- 40,000 repossessions per quarter • Social housing slashed: £8.7bn in 1979 down to £3.9bn in 1995/6
- Housing = 3.6% of GDP 1980-1993
- 130 new road schemes planned

The story is always the same - after the election comes the pay-off. With the Tories in 1992, it was Twyford Down and Tarmac. With Labour in 1997 it is - the Construction Industry. 4.4m new houses are going to be built by 2016. No new houses are needed - the excuse is 'demographic changes', meaning the further atomisation of individuals and scattering of community, with bricks and mortar the weapon this time. Prescott has admitted he could cut the number of new houses 'needed' by half or twothirds just by fiddling the statistics, which shows how unreal the demand really is. All Labour want to go is kick-start the economy and to promote ecocidal Growth and consumption, meaning these new houses are going to be built for rich Islington vuppies like Tony Blair who can afford outof-town mortgages, not the homeless and urban poor they claim.

Where will they be put? Take the county house themselves and do the empties up. of Devon, for example. 100,000 aere Whilst New Labour allows big scheduled to be built there; that is a 45- corporations to trample all over the green 47% population increase. North Petherton, belt, the poor, homeless, travellers, a village betweeen Bridgewater and boatees, low impact dwellers etc meet the Taunton, is set to ghave 12,5000 put in same legal and extra-legal harassment as there, burt the eventual intention is always, agin proving this bonanza is about obviously to join the two towns together.

STEVENAGE / HITCHIN

A similar business is going on in As well as developing green field sites out Stevenage, where 10-12,000 houses are in the country, there's a tendency to join set to go on 'green belt' land west of the up urban areas within conurbations, as A1(M). The disruptors are bilt near Dartford. now occupying the threatened land. On May 1st, work started on the first batch of by the greenfield v. Brownfield site 3,500 at Langley Vale.

Similar stuff is planned for at all! The government claim they are Nottinghamshire, 69,250 new houses by aiming at a 50/50 brownfield / greenfield 2011, distributed all round the county, target. What is a brown-field? For anywhere they can be squashed in. 8,000 example, a housing estate was built over in Mansfield, 8,500 in Ashfield, 14,400 in a disused apple orchard. Because the land Rushcliffe. 50,000 homes are planned for had been used before, this was classified as West Sussex, which explains why attempts 'brownfield' and quoted in the statistical to go for protected National Park status for propaganda to boost the state's green the South Downs failed (20th April).

NEW TOWNS

Even 100,000, 70,000 or 50,000 here and SUPPORTING there don't add up to the 4.4m. It's obvious that new towns are also being planned. Two we have been told about are You can't build all this without roads, 'Basingstoke Mk 2' near Micheldever in scyhools, sewage works, out of town Hampshire-along the course of the Itchen shopping centres, industrial estates, retail Valley, already ravaged by the M3 / parks, leisure complexes. So with the Twyford Down development--and another houses come a whole range of other things. for the Vale of York near Thirsk / Ripon.

If Blair really gave a damn about te homeless, he could compulsorally CONCLUSION purchase all the empties or force their owners to do them up. Of course, he hasn't got the bottle to take on private property like this - but could equally easily order the anti-squatting provisions of the CJA not to be enforced, allowing people to doctoring the econoy, not housing anyone.

URBAN INFILL

There is a danger that people are distracted 'debate' - we don't need these new houses credentials. Anyone looking at the orchard would have probably described it as countryside.

INFRASTRUCTURE

According to the CPRE's New Money For Old Roads report, at least 130 schemes are planned, among them the £35m Trojan horse through previously inaccessable conservation areas.

It's bloody everywhere. This plan to build 4.4m new houses represents a major challenge to the Green movement. Whereas before you had to travel to Twyford or Newbury, now the Earth Rapers are coming to a field near YOU!

TERMITES HAVE REACHED U.K.: They eat houses....

The construction press are already talking about a "2nd eco-war". We discovered that the 400+ road schemes that were "necessary" before the first weren't by the time it was over, and the same'll be true of housing this time. We can win using the same tactics too - networking amongst groups talking direct action in their local areas.

The lingering legacy of nuclear subs...

A prisoner in Scotland has sent in a series of press cuttings on radioactive dumping in the Firth of Forth. 1.7 MILLION gallons of radioactive tritium has been dumped into the sea. The waste comes from nuclear subs being dismantled in the now privatized Navy dockyard at Rosyth.

Putting profits before safety, it is easier to Filey for a holiday but collapsed in the dump this shit in the Forth. Yet it kills swimming pool. She had to b children. #### LEIGHA LAWS

The Scottish Evening Post (Aug 26th 1997 pp 26-27) reports the distressing case of Leigha Laws. Leigha was just 7 years old when she died from a malignant brain tumour, after struggling against it for 17 months. Her parents first noticed she was ill when she kept falling over. She had radiotherapy and steroids, but was discharged from hospital because the surgeons declared her a no-hope case. The treatments caused Leigha to put on weight and the children teased her at school.

BOOKS

Uncompromising Nonviolent Resistance in Defense of Mother Earth!

EARTH FIRST! DIRECT ACTION MANUAL BY THE D A M COLLECTIVE. £10 FROM SWEF!, P O BOX 10384, EUGENE, OR 97440, USA.

This guide for open action incorporates and updates the Australian Inter-Continental Deluxe Guide to Blockading and generally looks pretty useful.

The opening section is on nonviolence and by the end of it you're wondering why they didn't include the words to We Shall Overcome, but they were good enough to dedicate the book to "the other two-thirds of the world" outside Europe and Amerika where nonviolence is not a serious option. The security section following it rather implies the downside of nonviolence even there. This section is lot, the money-men of the City, want a actually very good - simple, accessible and comprehensive, written by a private investigator for a movement that's experienced FBI and wise use harassment at first hand.

The rest of the Guide is about the practicalities of locking on and blockading equipment &c. The Cobra Link motorbike lock gets a good solid plug as a D-lock successor. Though they cost $170+ each [t]hey are actually stronger than Ulocks and have been known to break the blades on "the jaws of life" multiple times before being cut through.

Beyond this, there are the various lock boxes, barrels, and using cars, steel doors &c in combination with lock-ons buried in the ground to make moving folk on increasingly impossible.

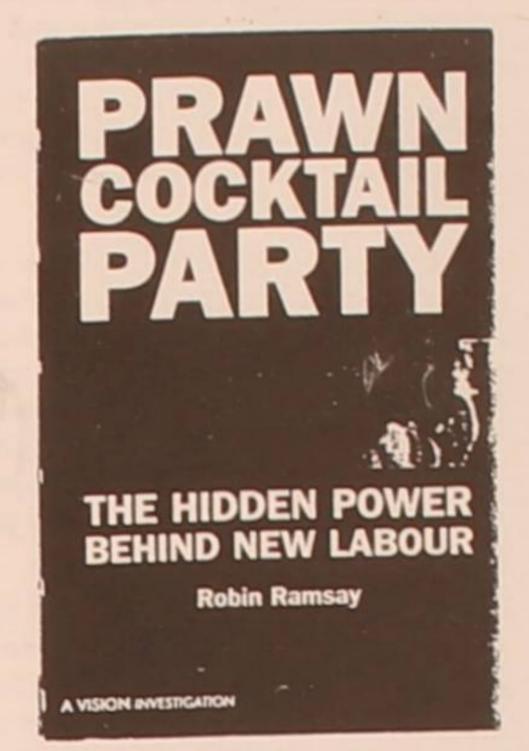

Although there was a lot about tripods (the monopoles &c sound stupid and use scaff poles, not all this yarn 'n' crap they suggest!) and platforms, there was nothing on tunnels and tree-houses despite references to Newbury &c in the The Heath government gave the City text. Road Raging is best here and even what they wanted, which led to 25% that hasn't got enough detail.

The rest is the 'odds and sods' section and certain areas of that could definitely do with more detail. For example, on hunt sabbing, we're (not) helpfully told:

Research the species you are trying to protect. The tactic for the sab depends on the species and is different for every species.

Fine! So we have to go read up on that elsewhere. Similarly, there's actually damn all on the practicalities of organising mass actions like RTS despite a header on it and on critical mass, the most valuable guide on the subject is not even referenced!

There's a little on forest yarning (as opposed to tree-spiking), cementing gates and blocking culverts to wash roads away, but these sections don't match up too well to Ecodefense and this text needs to be seem as complimentary to that rather than as its practical and ideological replacement.

PRAWN COCKTAIL PARTY BY ROBIN RAMSAY. £9.99 FROM VISION, 20 QUEEN ANNE STREET, LONDON W1M 0AY.

This expose of the hidden power behind New Labour can very much be seen as a continuation of Ramsay's earlier book, Smear, about secret state attacks on the Wilson administration. Whilst the first book dealt with who and how these attacks were carried out, Prawn Cocktail Party brings us right up to date by dealing with why.

The 'why' is that it advantaged the City of London establishment. As one much interested in the subject, the economics in this book are pretty heavy going, but Ramsay shows that as far as capitalism in UK goes, there are two factions with opposed interests. One lot, the domestic manufacturers want a cheap pound to encourage exports and the other high pound so they invest overseas and rake it in. They also want other bad stuff Amerikan secret state comes in too.

The product of a Europe-wide activists gathering in Luxembourg last December 1997, Hot Spring '98 has now been eight languages and details globalisation and corporate rule. There's a quite detailed listing of the alphabet soup of different trade agreements and mechanisms, whose overall effect is that we all get screwed by them. The bibliography is also pretty good - better than this pamphlet's limited listing section, which misses the more militant organisations.

It's refreshing to see the new generation 5,500 people were affected and at least of Green / DIY activists finally explicitly twelve died. #### SURVIVAL RECLAIMING THE LAND

It's an obvious fact that no one can own the land, but due to the past (present) set up by certain insecure, self-orientated individuals, we have found ourselves caught up in a web of irrational laws. Dear GA, Needless to say, most feel impotent and dare not challenge the status quo, not even when they realise how silly it all is. Well, now you can reclaim your right to use the land, partly at least.

I need not stress the importance at this time of planting trees, bushes, etc. We all know about the pollution, the devastation to the soil, the great loss of wildlife. Well, this solution may not solve every problem of land rights, but at least we can reclaim a bit of our plundered past.

Really, it is quite simple. Just go to any park, play area, etc. There you shall find young trees growing from fallen seeds. Carefully uproot these (especially the taller ones), take them to the edge of a wood, a grass verge or a disused piece of land and plant them there.

A few of us have been doing this for the Dundee, extending the boundaries of woodland, beginning new patches on unused corners, etc.

Certain bushes grow easily from clippings. Just put the twigs in a jar of water until they form roots, then plant in pots until you plant them outside. You peelings, same with many other types of agent provocateur role. vegetables

The rush hour Steve Booth's article, The Irrationalists.

Firstly, we do not believe the Oklahoma bombers "had the right idea", and cannot by any stretch of the imagination see the bombing as a progressive act. We do not accept the characterisation of victyoms (including children at a nursery) as "200 government automatons". Indeed, there is a strong case for saying the dead were victims of some kind of (secret) state Yours, in critical solidarity, operation. In that regard it is significant that FBI personnel in the building were told to take the morning off.

Secondly, concerning the Aum cult's sarin past few years around the countryside of gas attack on the Tokyo underground, we A LETTER TO cannot accept that they, either, "had the right idea". We have as little sympathy REPUBLICANS (zero) for those carrying out a sarin attack on the Tokyo underground as we would London's dependant on infrastructure, has been heavily edited to fit it in - but it anybody carrying out a similar attack on roads transporting millions of commuters did start out at 1017 words, twice GA's the Newcastle Metro or London and truckloads of necessities, even police word-limit for letters! underground. Don't waste £2,000 registering with the Soil Association. They won't register you as an organic producer if they find out you cart in animal manure from an outside source because this breaks their rules, as was laid down by Act of Parliament, no less, when the organic® 'niche marketing' scam was drawn up by big business farming scum (the Soil Association). Best avoid the organic© label altogether and market your surplus as 'biodynamic' - another top tip?

Anyway, you'd better find a suitable piece of land to squat first and then write to us c/o GA for detailed help and advice.

SELF-DEFENCE AGAINST RIDERS

Dan S Cheval reports: Sick of being barged about or ridden down by psychos on horses? This is my tried and tested way of defending yourself from mounted violence - without injury to the horses.

You need two people, A and B. B should be the toughest of the two as s/he's going to do the hardest work.

IRRATIONALISTS

We are now aware Steve Booth's article was previously published in Lancaster Bomber (& criticised there) and its appearance in GA was as a direct result of a request from a then-prisoner (Steve), which does make us reluctant to criticise. But in the end all of us are engaged in politics to improve people's lives, not end them summarily.

In that sense, the use that has been and will abandoned. And when traffic flows again, Home, Fabian 'Fuckwit' Tompsett (aka L down again, and again, and again.... Blissett) and Micah the 'Space Bunny' will be taken up another time.

Further tips for dealing with riders without using caltrops, missiles or polearms will be gratefully received here before the next hunting season!

FIGHTING CONS-PIRACY CHARGES

A Gandalf defendant writes: The cops think they've got a 'catch-all' law with the conspiracy laws but you can turn it against them in court and make conspiracy cases a nightmare for them.

• All defendants should have the same solicitor take all their proofs and then share them with each other. The line is that everyone wants to run a unified, common defence.

O At trial, each defendant falls out with their lawyer except one. They should do this one by one. No reason for any of these disputes need be given in open court because of lawyer-client privilege. Also because of privilege, each dissident defendant will have to be tried separately from the others, as all have shared proofs with the lawyer and each other. This means there will be as many separate trials as there will be defendants expensive, exhausting and embarrassing for the Crown.

• At the following, separate trials, each defendant will sit alone in the dock, something a jury will find absurd in a conspiracy trial. The defendant can call all the others as witnesses in his / her trial and they--without prejudice to themselves--can take the blame and present the defendant as an innocent party. At their trials, the defendant becomes a witness for each of them on the same

Needless to say, the first lawyer's not keen to share this strategy with you, as they end up pretty much out of a job. Justified revenge on duty solicitors perhaps - but don't tell them that!

MUSIC

ECONOCHRIST "1988-93" 2xCD

Covering all their vinyl releases & compilation tracks, these 2 CDs have 41 tracks in total with lyrics included. A fusion of angry punk rock, anarchist ideas, good tunes and thoughtful lyrics. The Church, sexism, violence (personal & state sponsored) all get a good knocking and the accompanying anti-war stencil graphics are particularly good. Released in their native California, Try Active Distribution, BM Active, London WCIN 3XX

STRIKNIEN D.C. "GHETTOBLASTER" CD

Ska is infectious! You can't help but feel the energy, and it seems like it has definitely taken root in the punk scene. Striknien DC are amongst the best, with a good mix of decent music & punk rock anger. Lyrics don't really cover anything particularly new: anti-religious (bear in mind they're from Ireland where the church still holds a lot of power), antismack (Dublin is rife with the stuff) and, like any self-respecting punk rocker/ hunt sab/ Gandalf defendant, anti-police. 20 trax (inc a version of LKJ's "Fite dem bak") for £5 ppd from Rejected Records, 9 Woodlands Ave, Dun Laoghaire, Co. Dublin, Ireland

QUARANTINE "JUNCTION 10" 7"

Following on from the excellent "Automatic Negative Thoughts" LP, this is a co-release by 5 labels across Europe. 4 tracks of powerful chugging guitars, build ups & melodies with semi-growled, semi-sung male & female vocals. Subject matter of the songs are variations on the theme of rules, regulations & attitudes. Quarantine have now split, but were the logical conclusion of anarcho-noise with a bit of intelligence chucked in. £2.50 ppd from Panoptic Vision c/o 11 Eigth St, Birkenshaw, Uddington, Glasgow.

CARRY ON SABBING Benefit tape

A great compilation of varying styles of punk rock - from the anarcho-punk of Oi Polloi & Black Kronstadt to the "emo" of Bob Tilton to the ska of Spithead to the humour of Wat Tyler...If you're not gonna sab, then at least support those who do by buying this tape....£2.30 ppd from Moonrip, PO Box 87, Farnham, Surrey GU9 9YY (cheques/PO "M.Bridgeman")

BLACK KRONSTADT "A WORLD TO WIN" 7"

The title says it all - a blistering autonomist attack on the "system", it's ruling class & the fascism that is positively encouraged within it. The music of this Canadian band is dark and verging on "grind" yet still upbeat & clear enough vocally to avoid that label. Comes with a booklet of underground poetry, great artwork and sleeve notes about the songs & Mumia Abu-Jamal.

$5 ppd(uk) from Consensus Reality, 1951 W. Burnside #1654, Portland, Oregon 97209 USA. It's worth checking out their other releases featuring bands from Japan, UK (Haywire) & USA (Detestation, Obliterated)

"IT'S OUR REVOLUTION, AND WE ARE GONNA DANCE"

the mid-80s, the Since phenomenon of PUNKS PICNICS have become a part of the punkrock counter culture. They now happen all across the UK, often supplemented by gigs (in some cases stretching over 10 days!!). They are a chance for anarchists & punks to mix with each other and exchange ideas, information, fanzines, food & drink. They are D.I.Y. events - autonomous gatherings that have taken over where the free festival scene left off. Although as isolated incidents not a threat, the fact that people can gather like this without leaders or stewarding (or the need to make a buck from it) would seem to be perceived as a threat by the powers that be and incidences of batterings & arrests have occurred in London, Edinburgh, Manchester Newcastle (and elsewhere). Of course, the response has been abject defiance and to this day people are still exercising their right to free assembly throughout the summer. Most cities will have one so keep your ear to the ground. As the time of writing, Hackney @ist Picnic is about to the Nottingham one start, happens on the 2nd weekend in June, and Southampton hosts one over the August Bank Holiday weekend (29&30 August - bands to include Restarts, Zero Tolerance, Scatha, the Tone, Haywire and more).

THE 'TONE "ONE FOR THE MONEY..." 7" (Rugger Bugger, PO Box 357, London SE19 1AD)

Take Thatcher On Acid Schwartzaneggar members, skank it up in the style of the Clash at their best, and this is what you get. Live, the Clash comparisons are unavoidable, but this lot only take the positive elements leaving the bullshit behind. On this release they've achieved a finely-tuned, professional sound. Lyrics seem to be an observational attack on society, especially "9 to life". 3 original songs are supplemented by an excellent version of the Slickers' "Johnny too bad" (featured in "The Harder they Come").

RECLAIM MAY DAY FESTIVAL, PORTSMOUTH

More than just music, this event was a benefit for striking workers. What was particularly good to see was a healthy collection of stalls from various @ist/AR groups and speakers combined with the bands. First of the bands was Inline Skating Barbies, a local 3piece playing US-style pop-punk that seems to be so popular at the moment. I just wish that the "hardcore kids" would take on board more of the punk rock attitude of rebellion & resistance that spawned this "scene". Following some nice reggae tunes and a poet whose name I didn't catch, came Hydra. Sorry, call me a musical fascist if you like, but industrial goth sounds like meaningless crap to me. I couldn't hear any message as such, but I presume the intention was to attract a wider audience so they served their purpose. Speaking of such things, it's worth mentioning that the night also attracted the SWP, always keen to jump on a bandwagon, who attempted a paper sale outside. They gave up after some grief from punters, and also regulars to the Labour club where it was held. The night came to a crescendo when PAIN took the stage. Playing dub, ska & punk they went down well with some new material but came into their own with classics such as "Oh,no..it's the pigs!" and "British Justice". Where more fitting to play such songs than Hampshire - the home of the Conspiracy dragnet!! They finished with "White Man in Hammersmith Palais", a Clash song (probably their best). 20 years on this song is still relevant, the British public epitomised in their disregard for freedom and support for New La-Bore with the line "all over people change their votes, along with their overcoats..if adolf hitler flew in today they'd send a limousine anyway". The event raised £200 for Hillingdon hospital workers and hopefully some awareness.

G.A.:THE ZINE MANOEUVRINGS ON THE FAR-RIGHT

Europa's tatty Radical Shift, we figured it 'useful idiot', the neo-nationalists' Trojan was on its last legs - not least because horse into the Green movement. Now everyone knew what it was fronting for. Radical Shit's being discarded as exposed, Richard Hunt's Alternative Green hadn't Alternative Green's to be used for that been published for two years when we purpose in future instead. We doubt either figured it'd finally folded.

Evidently, Hunt really was spending the intervening time getting his book out (reviewed in GA51) as AG has appeared again. Amongst the usual cavalcade of dodgy far-Right figures is an interview with the virulently anti-semitic English National Movement (ENM - now calling itself the National Revolutionary Faction), In the last Alternative Green, Hunt boasts where he goes on about how capitalists are that Lefty bookshops still sell it, and so all of one race. Race is a myth any-way, so approve of its content. The Inner Bookshouldn't be an issue, but-given the shop, 111 Magdalen Road, Oxford OX4 context-does Hunt mean white European - in fact stocks all sorts of anti-semitic or Jewish?

Maybe not - in his last letter to Here & the piss insisting the National Party ideological architect behind Trans-Europa, Richard Lawson, was but a "national syndicalist", not a fascist. Archetypal fascisti Benito Mussolini described himself in exactly these terms, of course! Despite pretensions to be a historian, Hunt might Note, also, Icke-sucking zine, Rainbow be ignorant enough of his flatterers' Ark, may be relaunched and the heritage to not know this!

When we saw the second issue of Trans- Ignorance, of course, just makes Hunt a Hunt nor the Trans-Europeans know what they're getting into. He may be ignorant or indifferent to the way he's being used by them - but they don't know what it's like having this dogmatic old tosser as an editor. Well, they'll both learn - and now you have before they can even get their ramshackle ol' string-bag off the ground!
