CLAREMONT MUST STAY

Every little helps. Money for the campaign to keep Claremont open.

"It would be better for our children to attend the local school in slightly worse premises than to have them run over travelling to Lenton, "said one of the hundred or so parents, residents and teachers at a meeting on December 11th to oppose the planned closure of Claremont Boys Comprehensive School in Forest Fields.

DANGER AROUND THE CORNER?

On the grounds that the building is beyond improvement the County Council Education Committee have proposed the closure of Claremont and the transfer of its school students to Cottesmore in Lenton. Many voices were raised against this cut. After all, hadn't the Education Committee allowed Claremont's buildings to deteriorate? And, after winning a campaign to lessen the flow of dangerous and disruptive traffic through Forest Fields, why should parents allow their children to be subjected to some of the city's most perilous roads?

WE CAN'T LEAVE THE FIGHT TO OTHERS

Several speakers were convinced that Claremont had something of a "community school" about it and one gentlemen told the meeting of his time at school in Forest Fields almost half a century ago. Community education has a lot of advantages, providing more communication between staff and parents. Another speaker was equally convinced that there was no financial justification for the closure. "If we need a school the money should be made available - and there is money in the coffers" she said. It was generally agreed that the fight to keep Claremont must go on until and only until, a new school for the area is built.

AN ISSUE FOR THE WHOLE COMMUNITY

Although Manning Girls Comprehensive is not immediately effected, Leo Keely, a parent at Manning pointed out their solid support for the retention of Claremont.
"Its an issue for the whole community" explained Sheila Marshall and she detailed the five junior school's whose pupils will be effected in the future if Claremont closed.

WHAT ACTION SHOULD BE TAKEN?

While school students had already begun collating signatures and the Forest Fields Labour Party and City Councilors had already pledged their support, the Local Conservative Councillor (Ernest Chambers) recently failed to support a proposa to postpone the closure plans. However, while most agreed that it is important to lobby councillors and MP's several people suggested the need for a 'healthy mistrust' of politicians.

Another issue came up around the message of support from the Trades Council cuts campaign.

Many were worried that this would take control of the Claremont campaign out of the area, but at the same time, the sympathy and active support of local trade unionists and other campaigns was sonething which those concerned with Claremont couldn't turn their back on.

The meeting elected an Action Committee which parents on from most of the local schools and agreed upon a statement. It said

"We , the undersigned, vigorously object to any proposal to close Claremont School or to move any child from the area for the purpose of their education. We also propose that serious consideration be given to the building of a new school to serve this area and that no further consideration be given to this proposal until a new school is built.

This will be used in a door-to-door petition. Residents were also asked to lobby the local MP W. Whitlock and the two heads of Education at County Hall, Mrs. C. Minckley and Mr. J Stone. Another meeting has been called for Thursday January 3rd at the Craft Centre on Gregory Boulevard 7.30. It was pointed out that there is much to be done, before the next full Education Committee on February 14th.

EDITORIAL

Our Comeback letter this month is a criticism of our last month's Comeback article from the Gay Humanist Group. Although we may not all agree with the views expressed in the article, That Paper feels that readers should have the right to air their opinions.

This month we feature an article
"Where have all the assets gone".
We've all known for a long time that Council House sales mean longer waiting lists, less choice, less chance of getting a transfer, and poor quality housing. This article however, points out the financial losses involved i.e. to the tune of £75m.

The deadlines for the Jan/Feb issue are 11th January for Articles, 14th January for News.
Please phone That Paper on Nottingham 787813 with views and articles, and Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to you all.

SCAG

The Students Community Action Group, at Nottingham University, recently helped to set up and run a club for youngsters in the Meadows. The club runs on Saturday morning at Queens Walk Community Centre. The main activities at the moment are trips, to the cinema, ice-skating the castle etc..., but they hope to direct the children's interest more towards the community.

The group are hoping to help set up another club in Hyson Green, perhaps for after school hours. The club should get off the ground in the new year.

There may also be help available for Playschemes, as many students stay in Nottingham during the holidays.

If your group would like help with either a Summer or Easter play-scheme, contact Penny Plowman on 55912 ext. 1, and she will help put you in touch with interested students.

am hoping that 'That Paper' will seek informed advice before publishing controversial materal like that which appeared under the vague heading 'comeback' in the November issue. In this a group calling itself the 'Gay Humanist Group' is alleging that the Festival of Light, the Mormons and the Jehovah's Witnesses 'and other churches of this type' have strong connections with extreme right-wing parties. Well, Mormons are generally connected with Salt Lake City in the United States, Jehovah's Witnesses (I understand) repudiate any association with any political organisation whatever, and the Festival of Light is not even a Christian organisation, let alone a church. It is a movement aimed at promoting standards of decency in public life in this country, those values which it believes are the values commonly and traditionally held by the people, and not just the right-wing extremists. Its supporters number many Christians, and also non Christians. It is totally nonpolitical and includes among its supporters trades union officials and some Labour MP's, and no doubt some on the other side of the political spectrum. I am sorry this humanist group is unable to answer their arguments as such, and in the absence of rational debate, is only able to resort to smear tactics.

I am an Anglican vicar, consequently I belong to a 'sexist' church, in that women at present cannot become clergy. Nevertheless I hope that true christians seeking a place to worship will not seek the advice of the Gay Humanist Group, since the attitude of humanists to the church is, at best, negative, and at worst antagonistic. About the homosexual question, it is very complex. I support the broad aims of the Festival of Light, but I also say that people with that particular sexual and emotional make-up ought not to be looked on as an automatic threat, but deserve and require the friendship of the community, including the Christian community. It is a sad reflection on our society if such folk find that the only place they can enjoy a social life is within the Gay commumity.

Nevertheless people's attitudes are as they are. The Gay Liberation movement gets a reasonable amount of publicity through the media, probably more than the Festival of Light Both groups are entitled to try to influence public opinion, but not, please, by using the kind of inuendo contained in your November article.

Mums, what do you do on Thursday mornings between 10-12 am?

If you'd like to meet other mums for a chat, with space and toys for the children to play, you might be interested in the Thursday morning Drop In recently started at the Hyson Green Community Centre St. Paul's Ave,. As well as coffee and a chat you can get legal and welfare advice if you want it, or take part in one of the craft activities. There is also a nearly new clothes stall.

Mums already involved in the group look forward to welcoming you, so don't be shy. After all, it'll make a change from looking at your own four walls.

H.G.D.T. A. Flat

Following a meeting between Councillor Betty Higgins (L) Chairman of the Housing Committee, and the H.G.D.T.A. Committee, an application was put to the Housing Dept. for the use of a flat, in the Hyson Green Complex.

The application was brought before the Housing Committee on the 8th November, when it was passed.

The flat is to be used for community purposes, and it is intended that it will be well used by all the tenants, from the youngest of babies to the oldest of pensioners.

IMMIGRATION PROPOSALS CAUSE CONCERN

ford or Dunkirk the cyclists The Pakistan Friends League, the always come first, the car driver Indian Workers Associations and second and the bus passenger third. many other organisations are alarmed at the Governments latest Well, Pedals have a monthly meeting proposals on Nationality and at 110 Mansfield at 7.00 on the Immigration. At a recent open first Monday of the month and have meeting at the Friends League produced the nowsletter called Centre on Woodborough Road, Ian Martin, General Secretary of the Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants explained the proposals.

The new proposals will keep out *husbands and fiancees of women not born here *dependent children and the elderly will only be able to enter if they can prove 'a standard of living below that of their own country'.

*other dependents, overseas students and business people.

Further, the new British Nationality Act intends to "remove some of the possible sources of future immigration" and it may do this by severe restrictions on work permits, preventing long-term 'temporary' residents from becoming permanent while introducing a new immigration 'quota'.

It was clearly pointed out these proposals will particularly effect black immigrants and apart from severely restricting rights to enter the UK, there will be many controls inside the UK. The proposals will also mean an increased amount of police time spent 'investigating' black people making life always subject to the attentions of the police. Members of immigrant organisations belive the proposals will only make the racial climate more tense. A national campaign has been formed to oppose these laws and a local branch has formed, sending several coaches to the recent demonstration in London.

More information is available from The Indian Centre Rawson Street, Forest Fields Nottingham.

Information from the Trades Council Cuts Committee shows four alarming trends in council housing. First, council housebuilding is the lowest since the war; Second, the switch to improvement is not likely to maintain the quality of housing stock; Third, the sale pf council housing means longer waiting lists, less choice and financial losses, and fourth, repair standards havedeclined.

To add to this, there's likely to be a rent increase of £150 per week soon, less spent on housing and the rocketing of interest charges, will mean more council spending will go on debt repayments.

Sixty people from a couple of dozen trade unions, tenants and community groups met on November 17th to build a broad-based campaign against the cuts. The aim was to unite workers in the public sector with users of the services which are at present being massively cut back. Workshops on health, education, social services, local government and the civil service followed speakers:

Tony Morris (NUPE) outlined the urgent need to fight cuts, Candy Udwin (National Fightback) shared her experience fighting cuts in the health service, building a militant grassroots movement that united all effected by the cuts and Ted Knight. (Lambeth Labour Council Leader) showed how a vigorous mass campaign, both inside and outside and inside the Labour Party could commit some Labour Councils to a position of No Cuts.

Above all, the Conference was an attempt to learn the lessons of the campaign so far and to plan a new stage of action against the cuts. A local demonstration is planned for the New Year and the Cuts Campaign holds monthly open meetings. For further information write to Cuts Committee, 118, Mansfield Rd or phone 582369.

The conference closed at 1.30 and all the delegates proceeded to join the Picket of Margaret Thatcher's visit to the National Federation of Conservative Trade Unionists Conference, held in the Sherwood Rooms.

Andrews Closure

The complete closure of Andrews Engineering, a family firm in Bulwell, early in the New Year will mean the loss of around one hundred and fifty jobs (ss That Paper no 1). And with the jobs will go the thriving social club that is within the works.

The reasons given for the closures are that the size of the site is uneconomic for the valve of work taking place there, although Andrews do have an aoption, for a new site 'sometime in the future' on Bleheim Industrial estate.

The Dyers and Bleachers Union spokesman, Mr. Les Skinner pointed out that in the current economic climate there seemed little prospect of saving the jobs and, for most people the possibilities of alternative jobs in the same industries are few. Not a very nice Chirstmas present.

THEY CAN BECAUSE THEY THINK

WHY WORK

Why turn the garages into workshops? These first Council Plans were Over the last 12 years only about 19 finished in August. We met the of 500 garages have actually been used as garages. The rest have actually been used as unsupervised play areas by the kids, which is understandable as there is no-where else for them to play except in the flats. ATTACKED

Children have been molested and women attacked, cars stolen in the city have been left there and set on fire, Industrial Waste has been dumped there.

EMPLOYMENT The result is that the garages present themselves as the worst aspect of the Flats. To change that, not only was it desirable to change the use of the garages, but to turn them into something productive and useful to the tenants. The Workshops will provide employment and solve the problem that the derelict garages now present.

BOWLING GREEN The last time we published anything was in the Koncrete Elephant when the Hyson Green Tenants won the battle against the City's proposal to turn the Garages into an Inter national Bowling Green, costing £2,000,000, which the tenants would not have been able to use!

When we asked the Council to consider the Workshops scheme again, (the first time was in May 1978) and negotiations progressed reasonably well.

START AGAIN

Then in May the local elections were held, and Labour won. We had to start negotiating all over again! But the new Council seemed keen and instructed the Officers to draw up plans and designs for the Workshops. Council in October to discuss their proposals. We weren't too happy as they suggested only 16 workshops out of 200 garages.

GOOD CHANCE A delegation then visited Brussels to see the European Commission about funding the wages of those who take up work in the Workshops. We were told that there was a good chance.

BACK IN

NOTTINGHAM

Back in Nottingham we told the Council that we didn't like their plan because it provided too few and too large workshops. Our original plan provided twice as many workshops at far less cost (because it did not involve the removal of load bearing walls).

COMPROMISE PLAN Things began to hot up. We had five meetings with Councillors and Officers in a fortnight, and acheived a compromise plan - the City kept eight of their large workshops and we got 26 small workshops. The cost was also reduced.

In addition, in principle, although negotiations are still going on, it was agreed to brick up the garages while new plans are drawn up. This does two things; it removes the problem of the garages and provides the builders of the workshops with a safe, secure 'shell' to work in.

D.O.E. The revised plan will go to Committee next month, and then to the Department of the Environment for app-

150 PEOPLE

We know that this project has been talked about for nearly two years now, and that the 150 people who said that thye would like to work in the workshops in a survey carried out in the flats, are now probably

THERE IS A WILL

as frustrated as we are! .

But it's no longer a paper exercise. There is a will on the part of the Councillors and Officers to get the scheme finished, and for us it can't happen soon enough.

MANAGEMENT The next stage of the negotiations is about the control and management of the workshops. We want Tenants to have an influential say in the running of the workshops and also to make sure that any profits go back into the flats to improve them.

OWN EFFORTS

We feel that this is an opportunity to turn the worst aspect of the flats into, perhaps, the best aspect. They will create employment and a better image of the flats, showing that the tenants are constructive and can, by their own efforts, make the flats a better place to live.

The intrepid Hyson Green Development Tenants Association are news-worthy material, again. Their continuing "GARAGES TO WORKSHOPS" campaign took them to russels recently.

URO-M.P.'S SUPPORT

Supported by Nottingham's Euro-M.P. Mike Gallagher, of Mansfield an elite 'Task-Force' (including Robin Robinson and Stan Starkey) met with E.E.C. 'Social fund', officals on October 17th, to discuss 'possible funding for Pilot Schemes".

With local City Council plans for conversion of the Hyson Green garages, progressing, T.A. leaders are looking ahead to completion. They propose taking up some small units as a local 'Start-Up' project in the workshops. This was the project discussed in Brussels.

'Pilot Scheme' AGREEMENT

social Fund officials in Brussels agreed that the rules do provide for cash-aid for such schemes. This cash-aid would help the local project to operate, independently, as a programme within the workshops.

Dept. of Employment

Much encouraged by the talks, H.G.D.T.A. negotiators are now to visit the London offices of the Department of Employment: here E.E.C. funding applications from Britain are processed for approval.

Local Interest

Locally, momentum for the scheme has picked up. Major city institutions are watching the process with interest. Support is evident in many areas.

Optimism

Patient through experience, H.G.D.T. A. negotiators are nevertheless increasingly optimistic for the workshops schemes success. Believing success will benefit the community at large and help point the way for the future, they pledge continuing vigilence and effort to the workshops realisation.

Other Directions?

Never ones to let the grass under their feet, this vital group of forward thinkers are already applying themselves in other directions on the workshops plans.

Shoot for The Moon!

Look out, Patrick Moore! - If the 'Something Different' in that night sky is not "GREEN CHEESE" then at least the colour may provide a clue as to who might be responsible - with this group the sky is the limit!

PARTY

The 15th November was the day Hyson Green Development Tenants' Association took a mixed party to London, to see the Clerkenwell Workshops.

The 14 people included the Deputy Leader of the Nottingham City Council, officers of the Department of Technical Services the local representative from a national Resource Agency, members of local Tenants' Associations and staff of 'That Paper'.

DIFFERENT DAY A City Centre appointment with a coach leaving for London at 7a.m. brought this group together for a somewhat 'different day at the office' to meet an 11 o'clock deadline in London's EC1, where the group was expected by the Clerkenwell management and workers.

We greeted our affable hosts at 31 Clerkenwell Close and began to enjoy a remarkable experience.

LESSONS Organised into two groups led by Valerie Duhoit and Neil Jackson (both Clerkenwell Directors), the party set about examining the Clerkenwell organisation for lessons which could be applied to the impending 'Garages to Workshops' programme in the Hyson Green Flats.

With nothing but an ideal to work with the originators of the Workshop enterprise had clearly suffered much personal hardship to acheive the considerable success the continuing scheme indicates.

There have certainly been individual successes. One young man, an early tenant user, arrived with £20 Officer, who talked the language working capital and determination to of officers and City officials, has now acheived an international reputation and outlet for his project (waterproofing climbing boots). Another question and answer session He is now in competition with large, nationally organised companies in the same field. From a small corner type of units which were in such in the building, he has expanded in- demand. Here, the Pennybank workto four complete workshops and looks shops made us realise the potential like increasing his success.

PENALTIES

The function of Clerkenwell is to provide opportunities for experiment without the severe penalties normally experienced by 'the little man' trying to raise himself out of the mire.

Other examples served to reinforce the belief that this Workshop concept is 'a life time opportunity' system geared to a real and continuing need - with application throughout many communities.

SUCCESSFULLY Following an enthusiastic question and answer session, we went to see the workshop units and their occupants at work. Shoemaking, macrame, optical lens grinding, button making, wood working etc, etc., these are just some of the activities with the added advantage of now being successfully carried out in small workshop units, by people who have responded to the opportunity to 'make it on their own'.

During the break for lunch, the opportunity to talk and exchange views was not wasted. The 'Coach and Horses' was unusually animated by the excited talk of the Nottingham party. A tight schedule cut the break short for the trip across the road to the Clerkenwell Green Association of Craftsmen.

Pennybank House was different from 31 Clerkenwell Close in that the local authority has taken the intiative to provide purpose-built workshop units.

This project was explained by Manny Shane, a former Local Authority prove his ideas. Working with a min- bringing our own City officials into imum of facilities, that young man the area of technical discussion and understanding.

POTENTIAL was held before a conducted tour through the building to see the in the Hyson Green Garages Conversion programme. Again, the success of the venture was encouraging.

Armed with first-hand experiences and knowledge of technical and human potential, and the examples of two distinctly different types of workshops, there was a much more positive and talkative group of people going back to Nottingham

The most appropriate way of remembering November 15th is to recall a poster in the office at 31 Clerkenwell Close. It portrayed two gulls in flight, with the quotation from Virgil - "They can because they think they can".

KNOWING Hyson Green can take to the skies, too because there are now more people around who think that way knowing they can,

Todays mods are up against it!

i.e. Punks, Rockers, Teds, and Greebos, in other words clean cut boys against Animals. These anti-social groups persist in going round looking for trouble with mods, they are always causing trouble when the mods are out numbered. Also most mods are young youths age between 16-19 so when there is any trouble its men fighting boys. When the mods came out again after the film Quadrophenia we were out for a good time, going round in the old 60's way of dress, enjoying the new and old mod music and customising scooters.

But recently since people have turned mod because of the recent trouble with gangs of Rockers and punks, this has spoiled the true mod image that we wanted to impress upon the public. But now because of these few trouble causes we have been rejected by the public.

WHAT ARE MODS?

The purpose of this is to strictly exclude any child outside the 'top six' and, in fact, to be able to vet mothers and children, only allowing places for the top couple of categories, S.O.N. campaign is asking social workers, health workers, matrons and others not to co-operate with this.

BUT WHERE CAN IT GO?

Like most Councils, Notts Tory County Council, want to see public services taken over by private, enterprise. The West Bridgeford Nursery is likely to go that way and the County Council have offered Sycamore Nursery to the S.O.N. mothers. However, there's no money, wages or any grants yet and S.O.N. (and friends) are debating what to do.

WHERE HAVE ALL THE ASSETS GONE?

The authors of 'Where have all the Assets Gone?' dispute the usual claim that Council House sales make money for the public purse and provide well-researched arguments to prove that

*Nottingham will make a net loss of £75 million in the long-term by selling 5,356 houses the last three years.

*Current Labour City Council policy will cause an extra loss of £2m. *Proposed Conservative Government policy will cause an ultimate loss of £1,200 million for every 100,000 council houses sold.

Their figures are based on a detailed study of 1,583 council houses sold by Nottingham City Council in the financial year 1977/78. The initial advantage of the 5,356 council house sales between May 1976 and May 1979 of £1 1/4 million a year will be rapidly reduced and after seven or eight years the yearly gains turned into losses. It is on the new houses that the council will make the biggest losses, each new house eventually netting a loss of around £35,000.

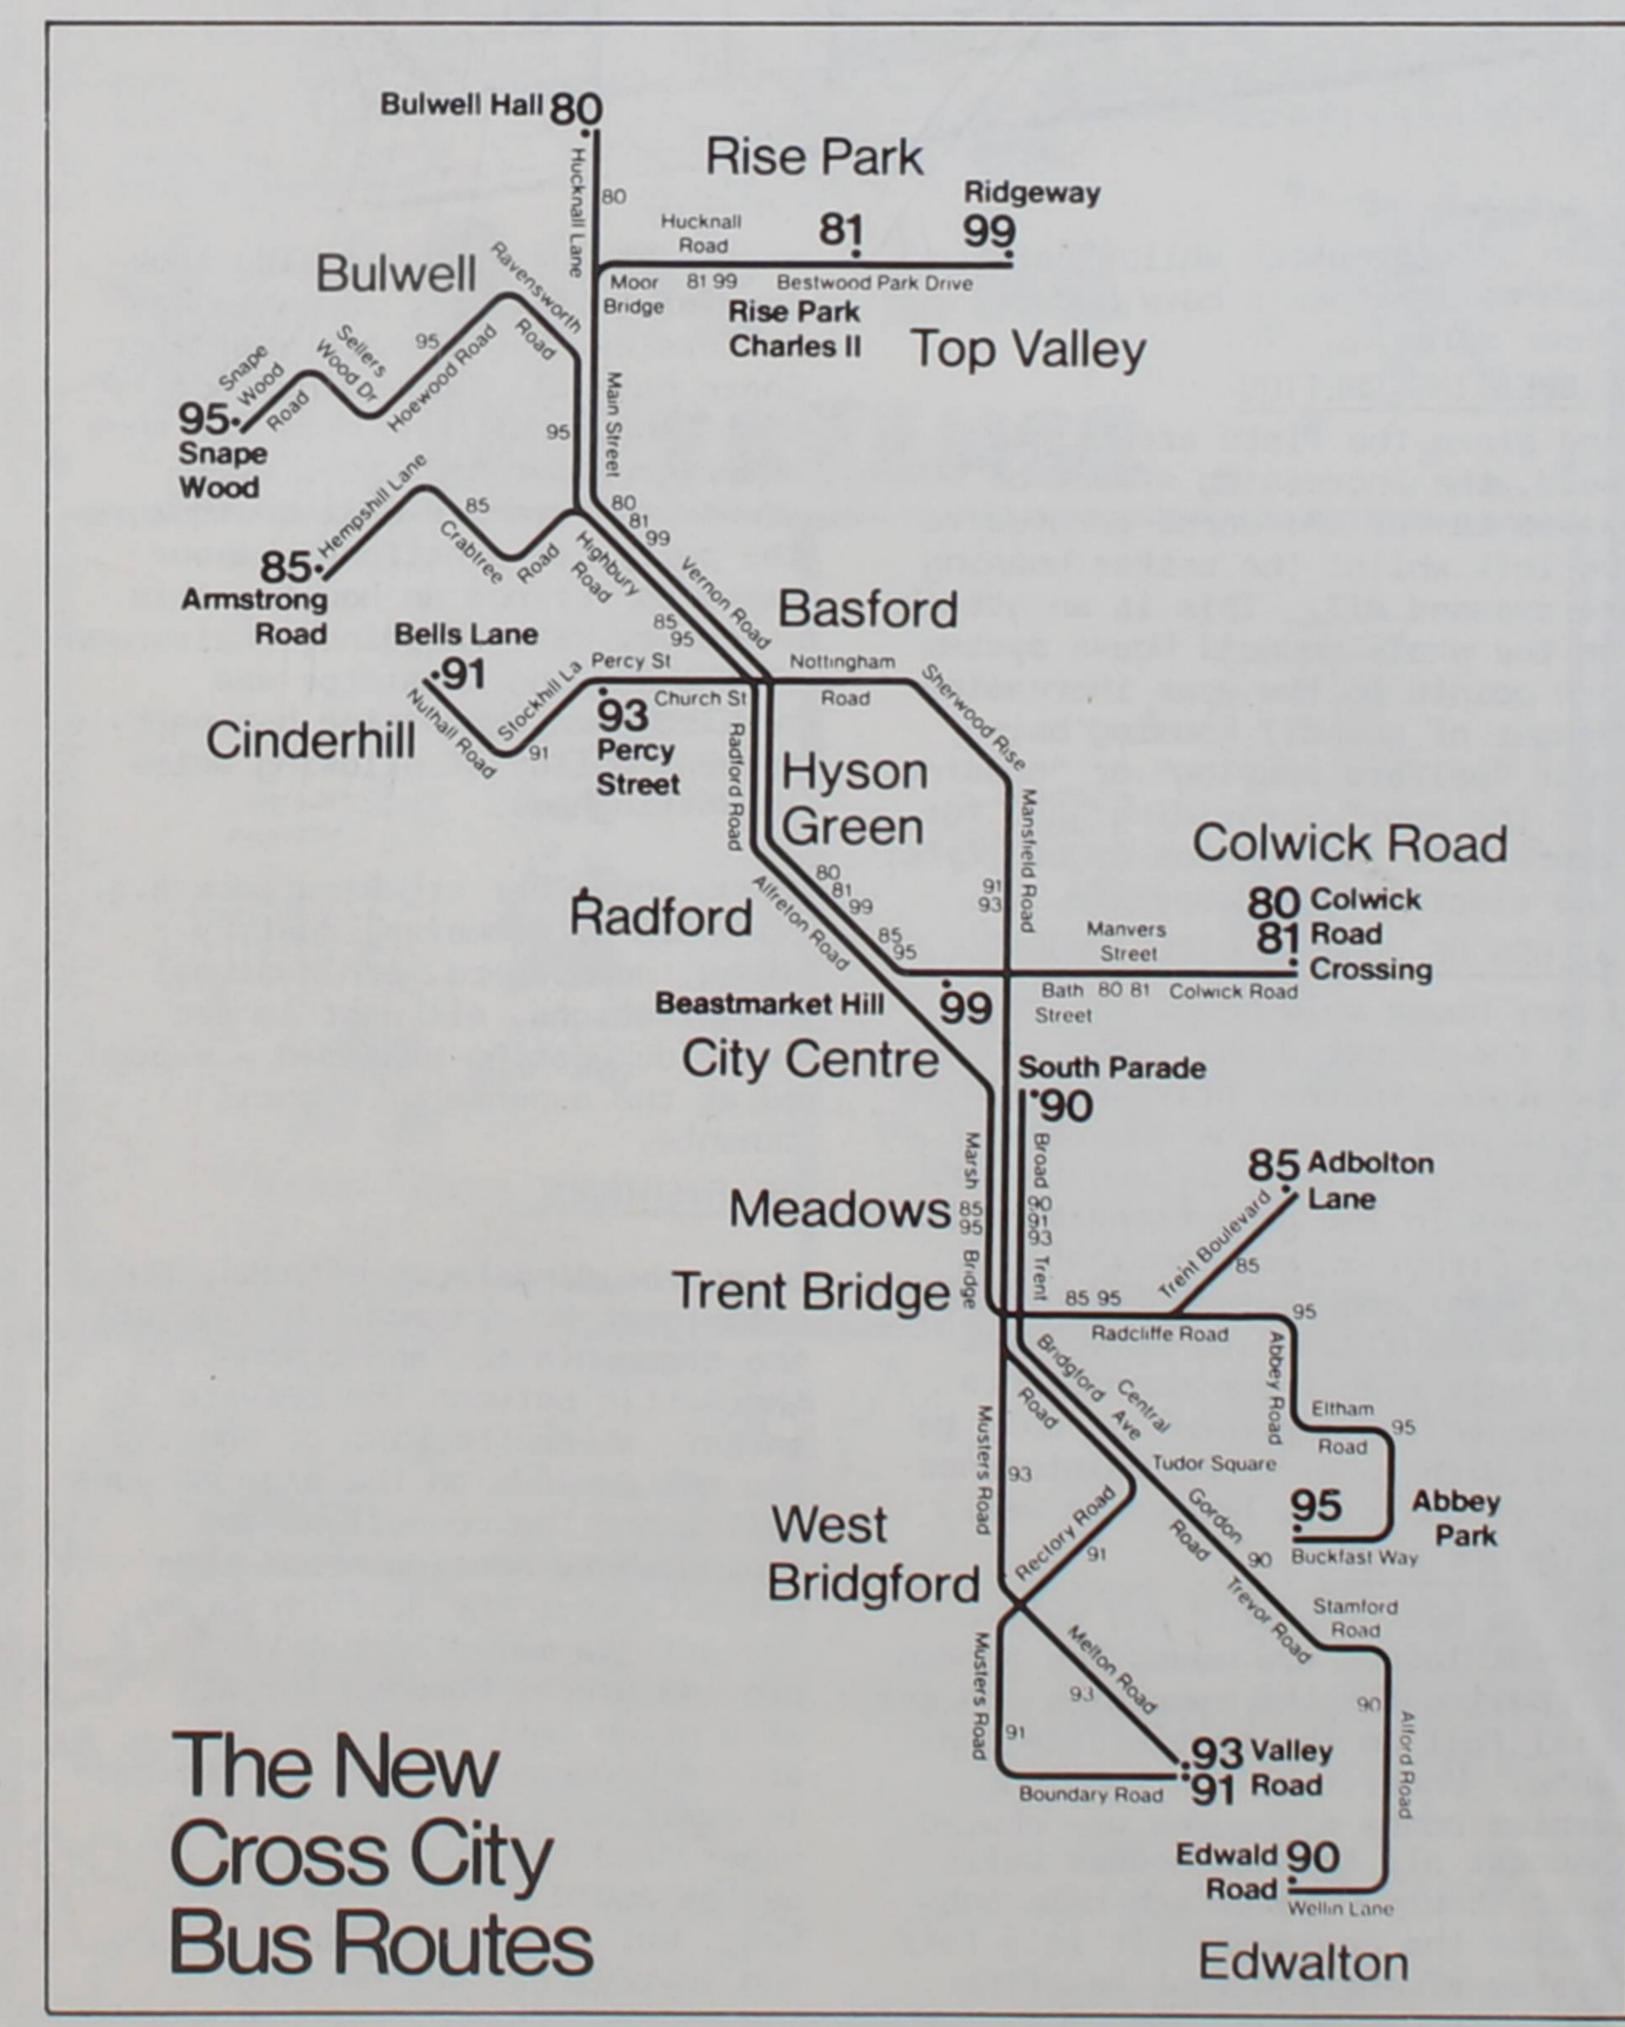

Councillor Bradbury, the previous Finance Chairman of Nottingham City Council, stated in December 1977: "I am convinced that on financial grounds, our policy makes very good sense..." He was echoed by Michael Heseltime, secretary of State for the Environment in April 1979, who said that sales produced "a substantial surplus to the community". He singled out Nottingham, arguing "Selling Council Houses saves public money. Since 1976 Nottingham's Conservative Council have sold £40 m worth of council houses and made a profit of £18m over the cost of building them". But he was looking at the past cost of providing houses and ignored income from rents.

What this study shows is that there will be a huge financial loss to the public in selling houses. The authors explain that nationally this. loss is equivalent to selling off North Sea Oil and is more than Britain's yearly contributions to the Common Market. They argue that not a single council house should be sold.

Baffled By New Numbers?

City of Nottingham Transport has made a major change in the cross city services between Bulwell, Cinderhill, Basford and West Bridgford. They hope to provide a simpler system where buses on each service will show the same route number in both directions. On top of that, evening and Sunday services will now be at least every half hour and there will be extended services in the Bulwell area to serve the new housing.

Crabtree, Hempshill Vale, Snape Wood and Hoewood Road Estates,

Two new routes (numbered 85 and 95) will replace the existing routes (35, 75 and 85)

Bulwell Hall, Rise Park and Top Valley .

The present routes (44 and 71) will be renumbered as 80 and 81. A new service 99 will go from Top Valley to city.

Bulwell Town Centre Services between Bulwell and City can be summarised as follows:

To and from Bulwell Bus Station - Services 84, 85, 86 To and From Bulwell Main St -Services 80, 81, 82, 95, 96, 99

Colwick Road. Services 80 replaces 44, and 81 replaces 71. Buses not travelling full route will show 82.

Cinderhill and Basford Services 36 and 37 will be replaced by 91 Cinderhill and West Bridgford, 93 Basford and West Bridgford

Buses not travelling full route will show 92 or 94

Opportunity Knocks

The "Inner Cities" have problems. They are identified as increasing unemployment with a mismatch of skills, old housing needing improvement or clearance, poor environment from dereliction, or the intrusion of traffic and industry, overburdened health and social services, lack of leisure and community facilities, migration of the more able and active households.

THE INNER AREA PROGRAMME PROVIDES A LITTLE MONEY TO LESSEN THESE PROB-LEMS. This money is supplied jointly by local and central government: the City and County Councils pay 25% of the cost, with the remaining 75% coming from the Department of the Environment.

Opportunity Knocks? After considerable pressure, discussions and negotiation the voluntary and community groups will now be able to have a say on the spending of the whole grant from central government to the inner city. The Council have agreed to this principle.

What will this mean? Now, the whole programme will be up for consideration and this will demand the development of a fairer set of ideas about which projects should get funding and which shouldn't. For community groups there will be more open decisions made, rather than what sometines happens now which is those groups who have "the ear" of the Council may be able to get preferential treatment. And the Council too won't be able to sneak it's pet schemes in; all schemes will be inspected by the community groups.

It's O.K. but keep an eye on the Council

At a meeting of inner city groups on December 1st it was decided to give the new approach and it's new decision-making structures a try, but to reserve the right to criticise he Council. There were fears too, that the new structure might demand too many meetings and too much precious time.

Lecisions about spending will pass through a 'Steering Committee' of senior Councillors, officers and the Inner City Executive up to the appropriate Policy and Finance Sub Committee. However, the main involvement of community groups will be lower down in WORKING GROUPS and ISSUE BASED MEETINGS. The former should give community groups an opportunity to outline what policy they want in some detail and in a way that the higher bodies must take account of, in the areas of 1. Employment 2. Housing and Transport 3. Leisure and Facilities 4. Education, Health and Social Services.

The latter will be able to call useful, well-prepared-for meetings on particular issues or in particular areas. Perhaps this will break the cycle of Public Meetings where residents of an area have little real say.

WHY ALL SALES MUST BE STOPPED

That Paper continues its practice of allowing a thought-provoking article in each issue. This time WORTH TALKING ABOUT is concerned with the sale of Council Houses.

NOT A SINGLE COUNCIL HOUSE SHOULD BE SOLD

The long term financial loss on Council house sales, by the last Conservative Council can be counted - it was £ 75 million. But you can't count the loss to the hundreds of families and individuals who suffered in other ways - by not getting the house of their choice, by waiting in clearance areas by waiting for transfers, by staying on the waiting list, by having to put up with overcrowded or substandard housing.

The last Tory council went wild with their sales campaign (remember the TV Eye programme where the reporter from London bought a house within 24 hours of coming to Nottingham?) yet the present Labour Council are still keeping on selling : 600 a year is their present target. And the national Tory government is hell bent on selling off as many as possible.

So given this widespread push for sales, WHAT are the real effects and WHY are so many organisations and political parties so keen? To start let's look at some of the claims made by those who support sales:

CLAIM

Sales give everyone a better housing choice.

FACT

In many places they have been open to everybody as long as they could pay. Yet a number of studies have shown that it is only the better off tenants with more secure jobs that can afford to buy. For instance in Wandsworth only 1 out of 10 male wage earners last year earned enough. Another study in Birmingham found that 1 out of 7 buyers doubled their spending on housing, whilst 1 in 3 paid at least 50% extra and that's without taking repairs and maintenance costs into account.

CLAIM

The majority of tenants prefer owner occupation.

FACT

Certainly many people see owning their own house as more attractive, BUT when you look at the reasons it is easy to see that many of the advantages of owner occupation could be given to council tenants almost overnight. Surverys have shown that the main advantages that many people would like are:

- a house with a garden (easily provided by the expansion of new building)
- wider choice of where to live (again can be provided by increased building and improved transfer system)
- security of tenure (provided in this and the last governments Housing Bill, although there are some restrictions)

- freedom from petty restrictions (easily changed overnight by a real Tenants Charter)
- right to improve and make alter ations you want (being provided for in this Housing Bill but you have to pay and there is no guarantee of being paid back, so its a way of cutting public spending.

These and other improvements could give tenants almost all the advantages of owner occupation WITHOUT selling any council houses!

CLAIM

Sales produce a better 'social mix' on estates.

FACT.

This peculiar claim seems to say there is a magic balance between council tenants and owners occupiers. It's nearly always to get more middle class people into working class areas, rarely, if ever, the other way round. On of the biggest pushes by Nottingham's Tory Council was to sell off many of the Canberra houses at Top Valley. These houses were originally intended as private houses but Labour agreed to buy them up and rent them. The Tories quickly reversed this

CLAIM

Sales will bring fiancial gains to taxpayers, ratepayers and tenants.

FACT

Complete lies. A report out this November ("Where have all the Assets Gone") shows how Tory sales of 5,000 houses between 1976-9 will produce a long term loss of £75 million and this present council will lose £27 million. Whilst there is usually a short term gain for a few years, loss of future rent income far exceeds the payments received through the mortgage after that. If national sales reached 100,000 each year the long term loss would be £1,200 million nationally for every 100,000 houses sold. A figure which is even greater than our present controversial contribution to the EEC. The Department of Environment have produced a report backing up these figures but refuse to repay it.

CLAIM

Sales will cut public expenditure.

FACT

Whilst it's true that once a house is sold the government stops paying subsidy, in fact it ends out paying more through mortage tax relief. For instance in Nottingham the government would have to pay an extra:

£186 p.a. if an average pre war house is sold £166 p.a. if an average post war house is sold £98 p.a. if a house is sold built between 1967-5

CLAIM

Sales don't affect transfer and waiting lists.

FACT

Margaret Thatchers private secretary wrote to a tenant in Hyson Green in 1977: "The sale of council houses does not hinder transfers". Of course it does. On average 1 out of every 25 houses becomes available for reletting each year so 5,000 sales means 200 less houses available every year for ever more. Moreover the choice of houses is seriously affected since the most popular get sold. Only with more houses can all those on waiting and transfer lists get a fair deal.

These are just some of the claims there are other effects as well.

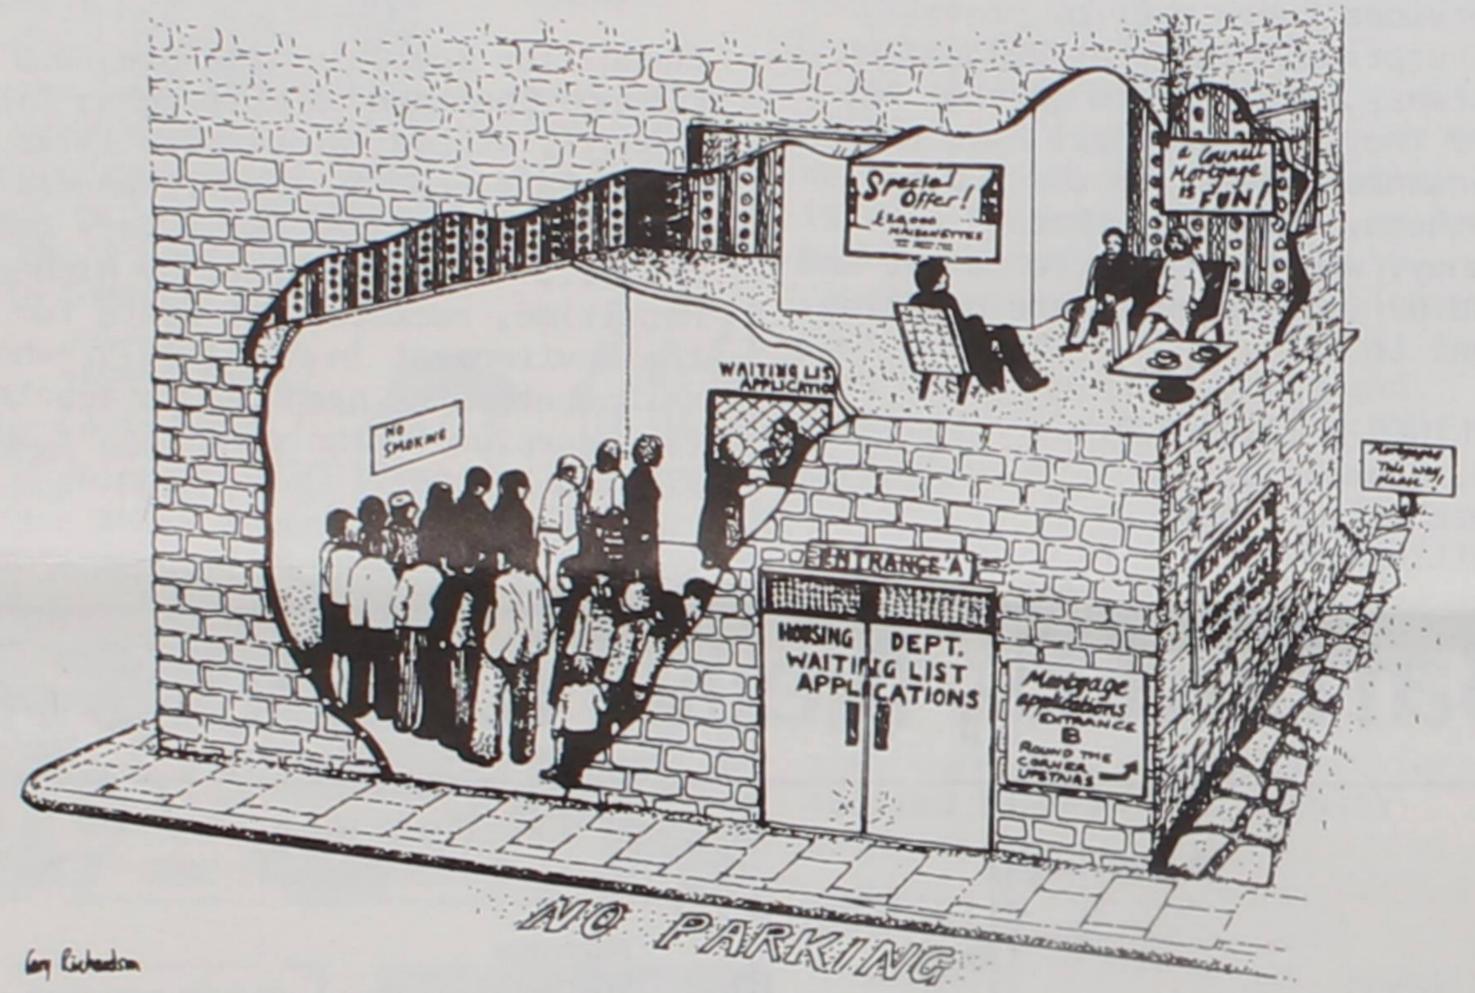

1. LESS CHOICE

If you do get a house, due to sales your choice will be severly limited. The way sales work has been aptly described by one London group as 'Sell the Best, Stuff the Rest'. In Nottingham it is the more popular estates such as Sherwood and Bestwood Park where sales all, but selling off houses undermines it. One amazing example is the case of 35 new house sold in the Meadows at prices way below the cost of building. The loss on these houses was £ 206,000 other tenants will have to make this up, in other words directly subsidise the new owner occupiers. WHO IS BEHIND THE SALES?

Many organisations have a direct interest in pushing sales:

- solicitors, estate agents, surveyors, building societies all want to see more owner occupation to expand their business
- * the Conservative party believes it will bring more votes and encourage a more stable society
- landowners, builders, property companies want to see more private building and less council houses since it is more profitable have been greatest whilst estates such as Broxtowe's have had far fewer sales.

2. CREATING GHETTOS

And since the flats aren't being sold, the increasing effect of sales is for the worst estates to be left whilst the better housing is creamed off. This is an attack on the whole council house system and points to the ever increasing danger of council housing being just "welfare housing" or "housing for the poor", providing just for those with low incomes or benefits, the elderly, the desparate.

3.LOSS OF JOBS IN DIRECT WORKS

Every house sold means one less for the direct works department to maintain, instead private builders or in some cases the owners will do the work. This will lead to loss of jobs in the department at a time when direct works organisations are under constant attack by the private building industry. Yet we badly need these departments expanded and improved not only to deal with repairs and maintenance but to build new houses as well. 4. HIGHER RENTS

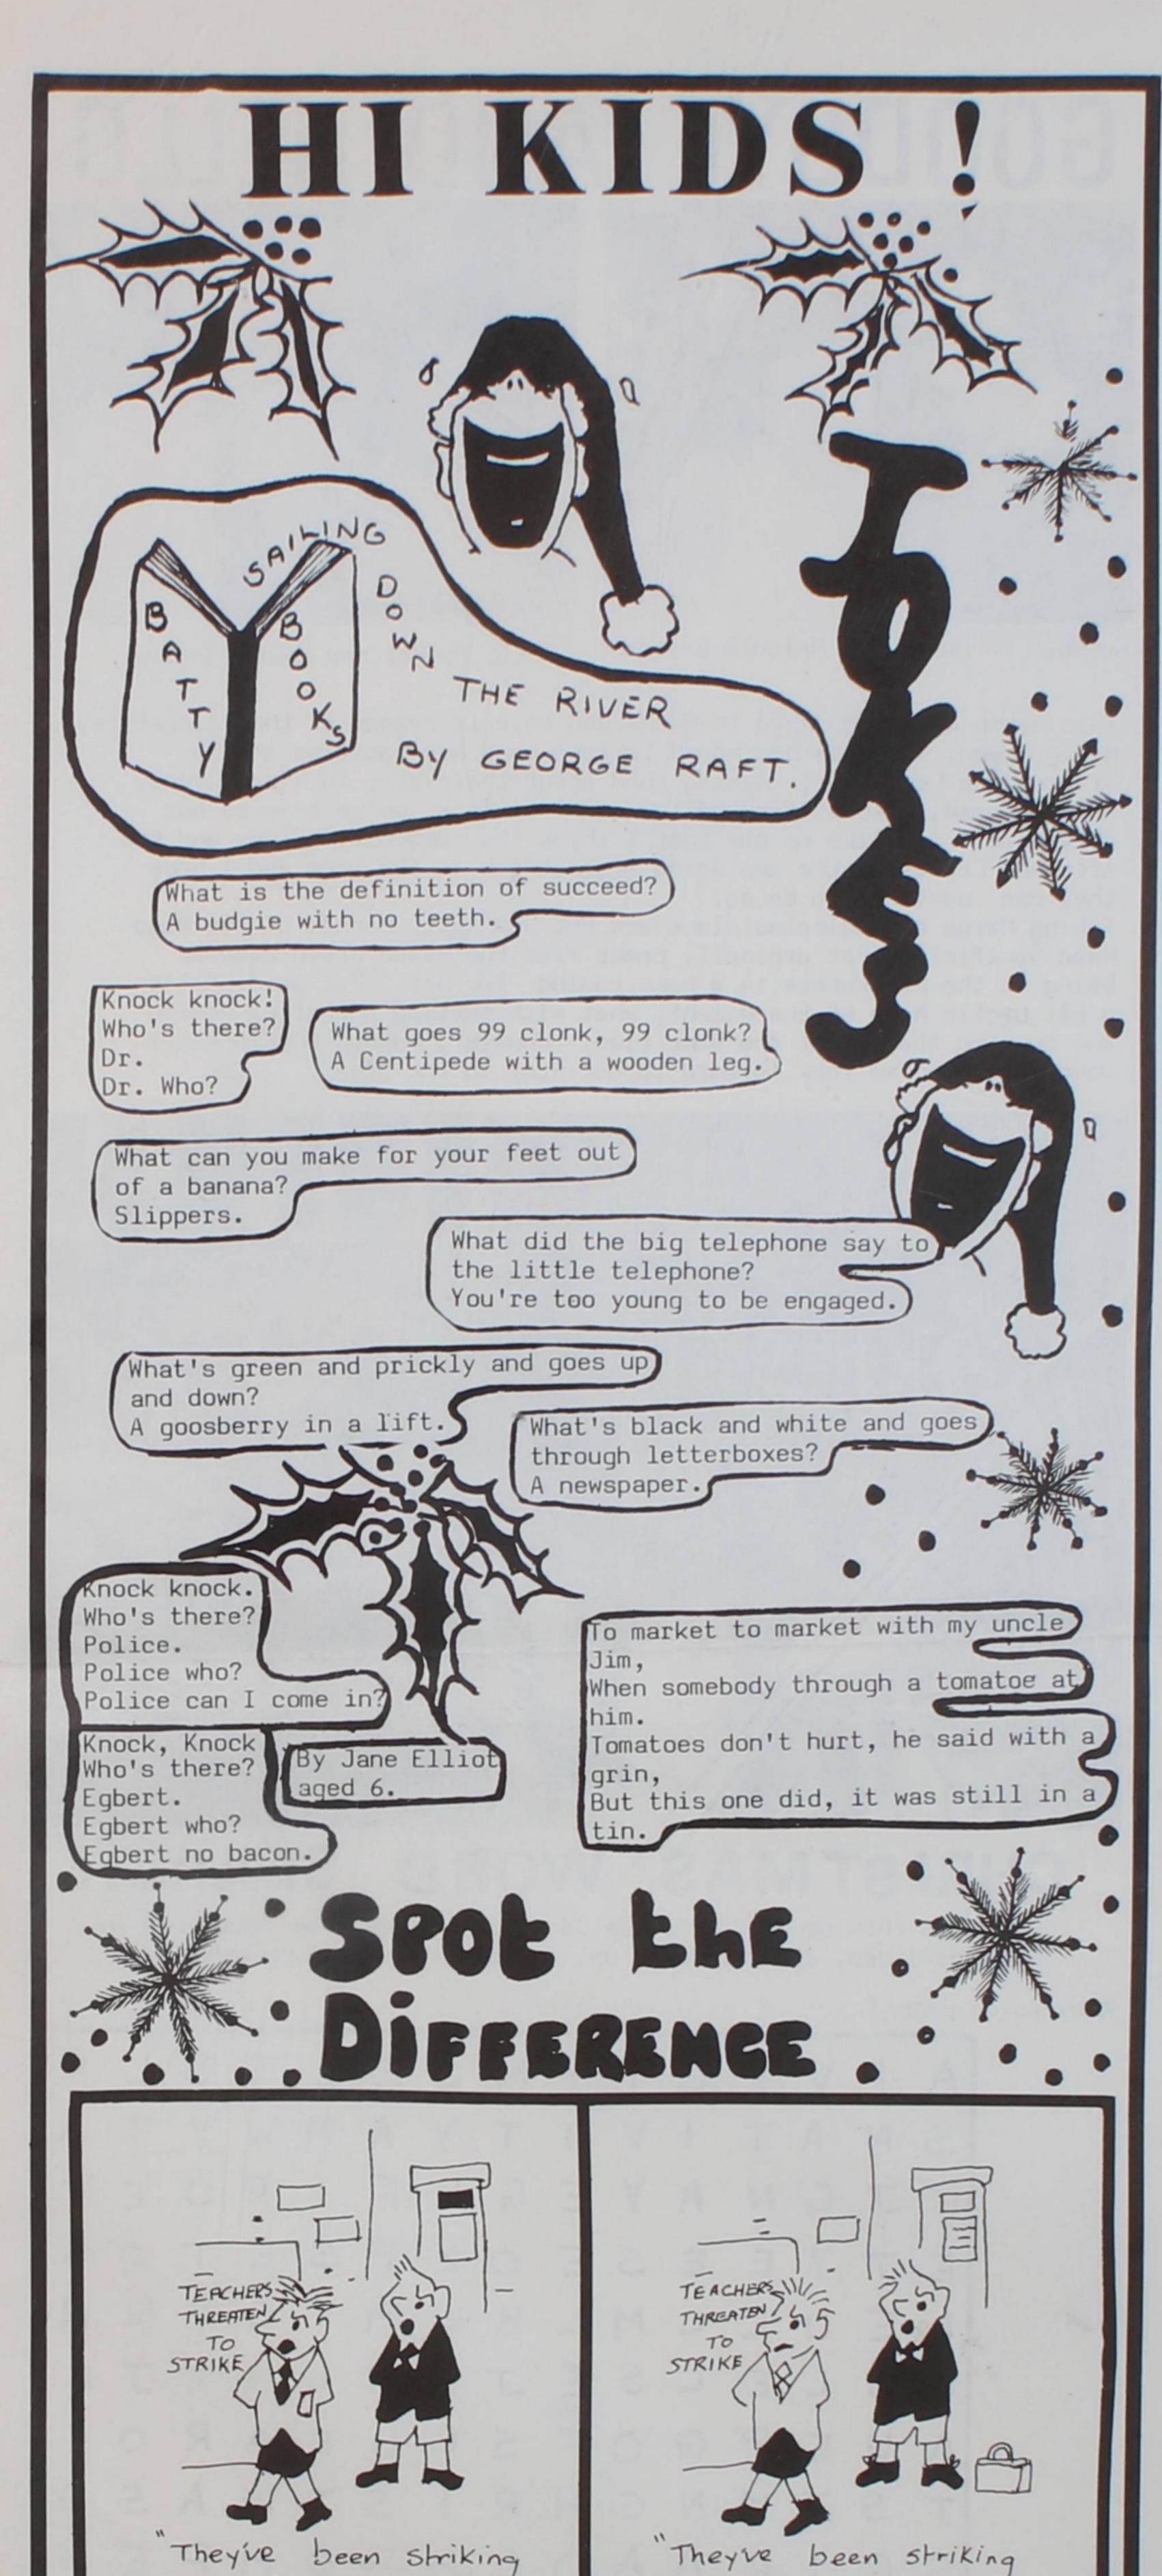

As the best are sold and as financial losses are made, the burden of paying for the remaining houses will fall on the rest of the tenants. Under the rent pooling system costs of houses are shared amongst all tenants-houses built over about 20 years ago help subsidise the new ones. It is a fair system of sharing that benefits

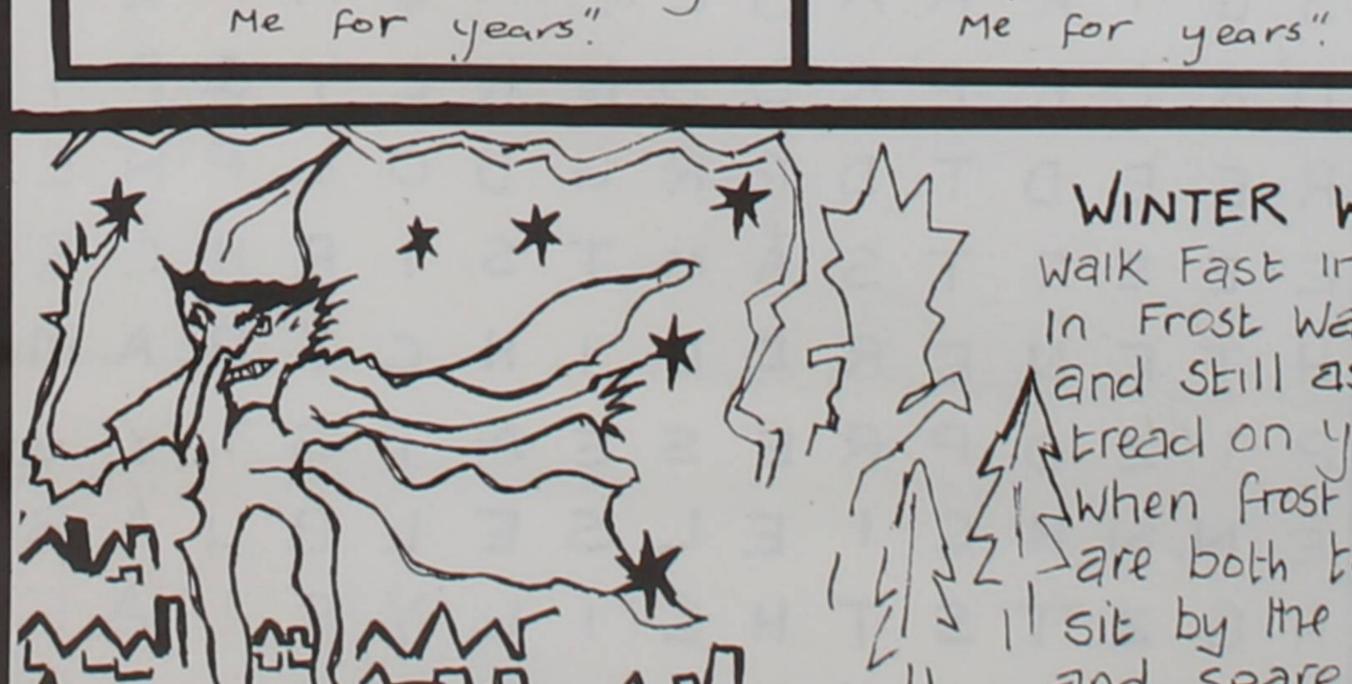

* the Labour Party is also looking for votes. For instance Roy Hattersley, Reg Freeson and Peter Shore have all claimed publically that Labour has done more for the owner occupier than the Tories. (However there are splits within the party, at a national Labour party conference on housing this November, Betty Higgins, chairwoman of the Housing Committee was heckled when supporting her party's present policy of allowing sales in Nottingham).

These and other organisations e.g. chambers of commerce, Roatary Clubs, newspapers, professional organisations, all want to see owner occupation expanded - expanded at the expense of council tenants.

THE FIGHTBACK

Given the disastrous effects, the sales must be stopped. Behind all the arguments for and against is the battle between the private market, where the kind of housing you get depends on the size of your wallet and the council house system where housing needs take priority over the ability to pay. The private market can NEVER provide decent housing for all at a price that everybody can afford because the name of the game is maximising profit. On the other hand the council house system could provide for everybody, but it needs expanding and improving. Not selling.

Peggy Seeger & Ewan MacColl

Aided by their two sons Calum and Neill, put on a folk concert to be remembered on November 9th at the International Community Centre.
They sing songs that deal with 'political matters' but 'for those credulous souls who believe that political songs are part of a world-wide communist conspiracy we would point out that the practice of writing and singing political songs is one of our oldest rraditions' (to quote the sleeve notes of their recent L.P. HOT BLAST).

During their two hour session they proformed songs old and new, including, legal illegal, The Tenant Farmer, The Fathers Song, Lady - what do you do all day? Nine month blues and many more. But what impressed me so much was their tremendous musical prowess, singing over an incredible range, varying the style, pace and key.

Further, they made one relise how rich is the stock of song and ballad from the English working class over the last eight centuries. However, in ending the concert with the 5 stage cantata, White Wind - which is about the destruction of Africa by white settlers - Peggy and Ewan drew out the links between the exploited of different countries.

By singing for free to a very full audience, Peggy and Ewan made £450 that night for Zimbabwea - Rhodesian refugees.

WHO HAS SMEARED THIS BLACK ON OUR FACES?

What of it, if we sleep by day?
Our days are like the nights
Here in this land we use the nights Our faces too are like the night.
What of it, if both may hands are black with grime?
What of it, if my eyes are still full of sleep?

What of it, if my hands are cracked? Pain has no voice. I eat sand and dust And drink the flying sparks And push a trolley Too heavy for my strength. We are a strange kind of tireless worker We have clothed ourselves in pound note What are you saying about us? We work from seven to seven Seven nights of the week The cold air wrapped in snow Blows against us, as we go on With lowered heads. For money We have made ourselves strangers to our own land And do not even want to know Who has smeared this black on our faces?

ON THE BANDWAGON LOCAL BANDS Art

This months Bandwagon, features another band from Nottingham.

They are Art Failure.

We interwiewed Art Failure at the Sandpiper club, where they were playing to a small but very lively audience.

The band, which consists of Graham Lees, guitar, William Redfearn-Vocals and guitar, Rob Dakin, drums Pat Allen- Keyboards and backing vocals, and finally Tim Fenton Ward, Bass. The band, who all live in the Nottingham area, have been freinds for years and have been together since January this year after having had no influence by anyone. Graham Lees said, "We are doing our own thing, and all the songs except for the Marc Bolan hit, Ride a White Swan, are all our own material". None of the boys, with the exception of Tim Fenton Ward, who was taught the Classical guitar by his grandfather, have had any musical experience, and have all taught themselves to play. Their Songs, including their Single Scream of Pain which is on the Vague Record label, has already sold 60% of the 2½ thousand cut, and can be bought at Virgin Records have all been written Jointly. Luckily they are all ready to accept each others critism, with out arguments, Graham said, "This set up works out fine". Already a few record companies are interested in them, and at the moment they are playing for make or break. None of the band have full time Jobs at the moment, they spend most of their time making music. This did not seem to worry them too much, just as long as they could make enough money to live on they were happy.

When asked about the future, the band said they would carry on playing regardless of making it or not. So lets hope Art Failure can manage to Scramble to the top of the Band-wagon.

Art Failure, play every thursday night at the Sandpiper, why not go along and see what you think?

GOODBYE AND HELLO

Goodbye to Marge and Malcolm Briggs

Hello to Pat and Keith Denham

This month we say goodbye to Marge and Malcolm Briggs of the Cricketers, Hyson Green, who have now moved to take up a new position at The Stirrup Cup Leicester. Asking them about their stay in Hyson Green, Malcolm said, "Except for the few odd incidents, we've enjoyed our stay here. I'd like to say that I think the community groups and the Arts and Crafts Centre are doing a great job in the area and I hope they can continue to do so.

Taking Marge and Malcolms place are Pat and Keith Denham of the Nags Head Mansfield. Pat orginally comes from the Hyson Green area so being at the Cricketers is a home coming for her. Pat said, "it's a bit hectic here at the moment, what with sorting out after moving and running the pub at the same time. However, things should settle down soon, and we look forward to our stay in the area".
